Fair Grounds Saturday afternoon, the score being 6 to 0.

Red Toner's leaders were too much for the semi-professionals, they only connecting for one safe single, and fanning the atmosphere nine times.

The game was a fast one, and the players showed considerable ginger in spots, making the exhibition an interesting one.

The feature of the game was the hitting of Moran, who batted a thousand per cent, making four clean hits, one of them a triple.

The All-Stars pulled off a pretty double in the fourth spasm that brought them the applause of the crowd.

Deemer got some difficult fouls out on the race track and got under a real high one near the old stand.

Poulson caught a nice game, and our old friend Snooks played a champion game. The All-Stars tried to take liberties with him in the way of stealing the second station, but he nailed them all as well as Johnny Kilgus might have done.

A good crowd enjoyed the game. The inability of the All-Stars to connect with Toner's delivery explains their defeat.

Today the same teams will play their second game, and Moran, who pitched a two-hit game against the Salt Lake aggregation at Brigham City, will be in the box for the All-Stars, and it is expected that the game will be a close and interesting contest.

NEW FOOTBALL RULES CREATE ATTENTION

By Francis Mullaney.

We are upon the new threshold of a new football season and extra interest is lent to the perspective by the new football rules. The rules will be tried out this year and, if the innovations are found successful, others may be made later.

The new rules are in printed form and from a survey reading it seems to me that the college game should lose none of its interest. And what will the new game be like? It will be different from the kind that so many thousands have gone wild over. It will be football just the same. The ball will be rushed, the ball will be kicked, and the ball will be passed forward, but it will be of the fast running kind, and lots of spectacular action.

When the football rules committee decided upon the general changes to be made after many long seasons, the general style of the game was then well known, but it is not until now, when the rules have been printed, that a more exact idea of the game is to be had.

The whole idea of the changes is to make the game less brutal and to eliminate some of the dangers that brought the game in to disrepute last season.

The flying tackle was one of the dangers cut out, and now players must have at least one foot on the ground when making a tackle. Another dangerous feature was the tackling of the man catching the ball on kicks and forward passes and the checking of the man on such plays. The new rules cut this all out.

The player catching the ball is not entitled to a free kick if he takes more than two steps. If he takes more than two steps he must put the ball into play from a scrimmage.

Players are not permitted to interfere with the ball carrier by reaching out and catching the ball on a kick or forward pass unless the ball has gone more than twenty yards beyond the line of scrimmage. Players are not allowed to interfere with one another or with the man catching the ball on a kick or forward pass unless the ball has gone more than twenty yards beyond the line of scrimmage. All this tends to eliminate some of the roughness of the game.

The prohibiting of interference locked together and the pushing and pulling the runner with the ball was made by the general committee at its sessions. Also the first man received the ball from the snapper-back being able to run with the ball. As the quarterback is not compelled to run five yards out from where the ball was put in play and as the same restriction of the forward pass is removed there is no longer any need for the longitudinal lines on the field of play.

The purpose of such an undertaking is to give fandom in general an opportunity to see the very best baseball possible. The present final in the shape of the world's series between the two pennant winning clubs of the major leagues is believed inadequate to satisfy the wishes of the great majority of supporters of these leagues. Only residents of the city directly interested have a good chance to enjoy the crowning glory of the season.

Most of the players named in the lineup above have signed contracts for this unusual post-season series, provided, of course, that no attempt is made to conflict with pre-arranged dates. Cincinnati and Cleveland will this fall meet in a post-season series for the championship of Ohio. It is quite likely that the Giants and Yankees will settle the Greater New York title. Of course the world's series between the two pennant winners is to be played as usual. There may be some difficulty in getting the series participants to engage in the ten game series later. But even if the promoters fail to obtain these naturally fine attractions there are more than enough excellent players ready to get in on the project to insure two of the strongest teams that ever met on a diamond.

There are many details yet to be completed, among them the framing of a schedule. There is little chance of the schedule being balked, however, as the majority of these players mentioned are eager to take a hand. The cities in which the games will be played are: New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Washington, Cincinnati, Louisville, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. Brooklyn would come in as part of Greater New York.

MURRAY WINS GREAT BATTLE

Occidentals Are Defeated in Thrilling Eleven-Inning Game.

Salt Lake, Sept. 12.—No big league baseball teams in a world's championship series could have played a more closely contested or a more thrilling game than that played Sunday afternoon at Walker's field, in which the Murray team was victorious over the Occidentals by a score of 2 to 0, after eleven innings of brilliant playing.

There was not a dull moment in the game. Almost every ball thrown furnished a thrill. In almost every inning there was a chance for one team or the other to score, and it was only by fast and brilliant fielding that both sides were kept from reaching home plate during the ten innings.

Time after time during the course of the game men reached third base and there appeared no possible way of preventing a score. Spectacular hitting and brilliant pitching on each occasion, up to the last inning saved the game.

Three thousand fans, expecting a great game, filled the grandstand and bleachers at Walker's field. The brilliant exhibition which they witnessed, however, was far in excess of their expectations. These situations were so arranged that the spectators and wild applause were in constant alternation.

The game was much in the nature of a pitchers' battle. Mooney, the star negro twirler, and McCreary, the new Murray giant, were pitted against each other. Though Murray got nine hits off Mooney, several of them were scratches and all of them were scattered. Three hits in the eleventh inning Murray's two runs. Mooney was effective throughout the game whenever there was a pinch and he pitched himself out of several bad holes. He struck out ten men.

McCreary pitched superb ball throughout the eight innings he was in the box. He allowed only three hits. With men on bases he always tightened and prevented a score. In the fifth inning his quick double play and new effort looked to be a certain score. He was retired at the beginning of the ninth, when Murphy was sent in to bat for him. Murphy was pitching in his old-time form and had the Occidentals guessing all of the time. They got only one hit in the third, and that was a sacrifice.

Behind each pitcher was almost perfect support. Mistakes were made by both sides, but none of the errors figured in the scoring. Means, at second base for Murray, played a star game. He had several hard chances and never erred in handling them. His fast fielding of difficult grounder was superb. Al Gunn easily led in batting, getting four safeties out of five times up.

LABOR FEDERATION TO BE IN POLITICS

It seems to be a decided fact that the Utah State Federation of Labor, at its convention in Salt Lake today and tomorrow, will take definite action on political matters, and will decide to take an active part in the state election of congressmen and legislators this year.

Mr. Theo. Clerie, secretary and treasurer of the Utah State Federation of Labor, has issued the official call for the convention, in which he strongly indicates the necessity of state laws for the protection of the wage earners.

It is considered that the mechanics' lien law on real property in Utah does not give much protection to the mechanic against the dishonest property holder. An efficient shop and factory inspection law will also be considered; also that this state should have some sort of an employers' liability or compulsory insurance law, whereby all those whose work or occupation carries any risk of life or limbs may be provided for in case of accident.

Now one who follows hazardous employment to the detriment of himself and family and through some cause happens to be killed or injured, his family and neighbors are made to suffer; and in cases where a man who does honest but hazardous work loses an arm or leg and can no longer earn his daily bread, he is made a beggar and an object of pity and shame unto society. Those are the points and facts that will be fully considered by the convention.

Mr. John M. Marshall, who is a delegate to the convention, will present that body with a copy of the mechanics' lien law of the state of Michigan. Mr. Marshall, being familiar with the efficiency of the mechanics' lien law of Michigan, believes that the copy will be of some assistance to the legislative committee of the federation.

The question of patronage of home industries will also come in for its share of consideration. Both Mr. Clerie and Mr. Marshall are strong advocates, among other things, of "Utah made goods for Utah citizens." It is characteristic of union men to encourage home industries not only because the wages earned in the home factories are put into circulation among the consumers, but also because the consumers have the privilege of inspecting and supervising the factories of their home city or state.

It is a well known fact among the better informed union men that things of every day use which are made in one's own city are made in better conditions in the large cities, and in many instances by persons of ill health or afflicted with contagious diseases, carry those contagions to the consumer.

The American Federation of Labor for some time past has been making a series of investigations and chemical analyses along these lines, and the union men maintain that they have sufficient evidence of authority to prove that garments or articles of clothing, cigars and such, if made under unclean conditions, or by diseased persons, will in many cases carry the germs of the disease to the consumer.

put in first class condition. A new paddock, jockey and scales room have been built, and many other improvements for the benefit of the public made. They have issued the program of races for the first eight days, showing an amount aggregating $9,500 in purses for races only.

Manager Richard Dwyer, who is at present starting at Anaconda, Montana, will reach here a week before the opening day and will take up his duties at once.

Applications for stabling are pouring in from all quarters of the continent, and the management are at their wits' ends to provide accommodations for all that wish to ship here.

With the close of two important meetings, Denver and Anaconda, on Saturday next all the principal stables racing at those points will ship direct to the fair grounds. It is estimated that there will be in the neighborhood of four hundred and fifty horses quartered at the fair grounds and surrounding available stables by Wednesday week.

In former racing seasons the great majority of horses racing here were of the cheap selling variety, and in consequence the racing was of very ordinary caliber. This season, however, the class of horses competing will be so immeasurably superior that it would be useless to attempt a comparison.

From now on Ogden will be the magnet that will attract the lover of horse racing from all parts of the United States, and it is a safe prediction that when the Four State Fair throws open its gates on Sept. 23 an enormous crowd will be on hand.

WEST OGDEN HAS A $1,000 FIRE

Saturday night the home of R. W. Cathers in West Ogden was burned to the ground, but fortunately, the boy sleeping in the upper part of the building escaped the flames. It was a frame building and it burned fiercely. The entire fire fighting force was at the fire, but quite powerless, due to the fact that there was not sufficient water with which to make the fight. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp placed in the bedroom of the boy who was looking after the home.

The house has been unoccupied for some time, so that loss was not great. The flames were discovered by a neighbor, and the Ogden fire department was quickly notified. In the meantime a bucket brigade was formed, but the fire gained such headway that it was quite powerless, due to the fact that there was not sufficient water with which to make the fight. When the firemen from this side of the viaduct arrived they found that there was no water, and were compelled to allow the house to burn. The chemical was brought in to service, and used upon the residence of Joe Wheeler in the rear and on the Slossman place next door, preventing a possible spread of the conflagration.

After burning for about an hour, the Cathers place was nothing but a smoldering mass of embers, completely wiped out.

While crossing the viaduct, one of the pumping engines of the fire department collapsed, as the result of loosening of the supports of the rear

HORSES FOR THE BIG RACE MEET

Judging from the present outlook, the greatest horse meeting in the history of Utah will be held during the Four-State Fair week and there is no question but that the racing will be conducted in a manner that will be acceptable to the lovers of the sport of kings.

Horsemen from all over the continent have signified their intention of being present. The California racing season opening so soon after the Four State Fair makes this possible, as nearly all owners heading for San Francisco will stop over for the meet given at the Ogden fair grounds.

Dr. Rowe, the enterprising and energetic president of the Four State Fair, has labored unceasingly to make this the greatest of all Utah's fairs. That his efforts will be crowned with success goes without saying.

Meanwhile the officials of the Ogden Racing association who have charge of the racing end of the program have not been idle by any means. The track proper has been axle, and the engine boiler dropped to the street, sweeping away the grate, and temporarily putting the machine out of service. It was quickly rigged up, however, and could have been used, had there been any water to pump.

The loss attending the burning of Cathers' house will not reach $1,000.

LOCAL FREIGHT IS INCREASING

P. H. Cook, traveling freight agent for the Union Pacific company, states that the month of August showed the largest local merchandise shipments of any month in the history of the Harriman system.

He estimates that the increase in the local traffic for the month just passed will reach 30 per cent over that of one year ago.

"At present the traffic on the Harriman lines at this point is exceedingly heavy," said Mr. Cook. "The sugar beet shipments have just started and we are expecting quite a heavy movement of beets, although it will not be as large as last year. We are bringing into Ogden several car loads of empty fruit cars every day for use at the canning factories. Our shipments from Ogden into Idaho are enormous. Today we will send 36 tons of merchandise from Ogden to Idaho towns. This shows that the local jobbers and wholesalers are doing an extensive business in Idaho."

Mr. Cook states that in some respects the future of the railroads for general traffic on the railroads as the live stock shipments will be light this year owing to the high price of provender. This will affect the movement of cattle and sheep.

NEWSBOYS ENGAGE IN KNIFE FIGHT

A couple of small newsboys entered into a fight Saturday night in which they used knives. The lady are only about seven years old, but they fought like Trojans. They were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Tom Be Vins and placed in the county jail for safe-keeping.

One lad, named Halshaw, stole a potato knife which was on display in front of a store on Washington avenue, and the other boy, named Johns, endeavored to take it away. A scuffle ensued, and Johns received a cut in the hand. He was taken in charge by Mr. Devine who happened by at an opportune moment, and taken to Bader's drug store where his injuries were treated.

Both boys were then taken by the Deputy sheriff to his home, where they will remain until tomorrow when they will probably be turned over to the juvenile court.

Young Halshaw is the little fellow who makes his sales of papers by working the "crying" game on prospective customers. He approached his man, and begins to cry, asking "Won't you please buy my last paper?" and he usually got away with a sale.
